

Religious Diversity & Anti-Discrimination Training

An award-winning programme that provides a concrete training package to address the religious dimension of intercultural relations

In this 5-day train-the-trainer you will experience highly interactive and participatory methods and gain access to the Trainer's Handbook which provides a menu of activity options which will help you bringing your community, school or workplace closer together.

Designed in the spirit of anti-prejudice diversity education this 5-day train-the-trainer event will enable you to:

- Recognize (and respect) the multicultural diversity present in your environment
- Understand concepts and issues related to diversity of belief and religion
- Address contemporary manifestations of stereotyping, prejudice and discrimination related to religion and belief
- Develop intercultural skills that will help you to problem-solve conflict situations
- Lead 2 to 3-day awareness raising workshops addressing the religious dimension in intercultural relations.

Who: This programme welcomes all forms of belief and non-belief. Educators, human resource professionals, public authorities, community leaders, mediators who are looking for a way to transform differences from an obstacle to an opportunity.

When: November 22-27, 2009
(Registration deadline: October 10)

Where: CEJI office in Brussels, Belgium

Cost: 749€ (incl VAT) including training fees, materials,

For registration information:

Ruth Friedman
Education Programmes Manager

✉ ruth.friedman@ceji.org
☎ +32 (0)2.340.9623 (direct) or visit our website:

www.ceji.org

